

Wednesday, June 30, 2010

Health Corner

Publication: www.indianexpress.com, Edition: Internet, Journalist: Bureau, Location: Top-Right

Health Corner

Bureau

A doctor examines a patient at a chiropractic treatment camp initiated by an American team of doctors at Shivpuri, Akkalkot

Anti-tobacco protest

Healis Sekhsaria Institute of Public Health, an anti-tobacco advocacy group, launched a protest against the upcoming four-day industrial Global Tobacco Networking Forum (GTNF) summit, which is scheduled to be held between October 4 and October 9 at Bangalore's ITC Royal Gardenia, saying that the event is in violation of the Framework Convention on Tobacco Control (FCTC), to which India is a signatory. A release issued by Dr P C Gupta, Director of Healis Sekhsaria Institute of Public Health, states that, "India is party to the WHO Framework Convention on Tobacco Control. The fact that the Tobacco Board of India is supporting this event shows that they are putting the Indian government in a compromising situation. The FCTC has stringent restrictions to protect people from exposure to smoking and consumption of other tobacco products."